DETAIL ACTION

Notice to Applicant(s)

- 1. This application has been examined. Claims 1-5 are pending.
- 2. Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. § 119, which have been placed of record in the file.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

- 3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:
 - (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.
- 4. Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Behr et al. (6,104,316) in view of Warabino et al., "Video Transcoding Proxy for 3Gwireless Mobile Internet Access", IEEE October 2000, pages 66-71
- 5. With respect to claims 1 and 2, Behr et al. disclose a geographical information system which provides map information from the server 12 to the requests for a plurality of terminals with difference display attributes, i.e. laptop, PDA or personal computer (see at least figures 1, 3, 4 and the related text). Behr et al. do not explicitly disclose an information control means located between the server and the terminals for converting the map information from the server without analyzing content of the obtained map information based on a display distribute of each terminal. However, such feature is well known and shown in at least figure 1 and the related text of the Warabino et al. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to combine these teaching in order to create different map information to suit different formats, devices to meet the characteristics of the client display devices

- 6. With respect to claim 3, Mohan et al. also disclose that the display attribute includes a number of pixels an colors that are supported by at least one client terminal (see pages 2016-2018).
- 7. Claims 4 and 5 are method claims corresponding to apparatus claims 1-3. Therefore, claims 4 and 5 are rejected for the same rationales set forth for claims 1-3.
- 8. With respect to claims 6 and 7, the limitations of these claims have been noted in the rejections above. They are therefore considered rejected as set forth above. It is noted that the map information is transmitted to the portable device as disclosed in Behr et al., and Warabino suggest the converting data according to the type of portable device as discussed above, which obviously that only the map information are converted and transmitted to the portable when combine these two references.

Conclusion

- 9. All claims are rejected.
- 10. Applicant's arguments filed on September 2003 have been fully considered and they are not deem to be persuasive. In the amendment, applicants essentially argue that the references used fails to disclose "converts the obtained map information without analyzing content of the obtained map information". Such argument based on the limitation just added to the claims. Upon the updated search and reconsideration, the new ground of rejection has been set forth as above.
